LETTERS FROM THE YES & STC BOARD

PHOTOGRAPHY BY JUAN ECHAVARRIA

On behalf of the YES Theatre board of directors, it is my pleasure to welcome you to the theatre. As chair, I am honored to introduce you to our diverse and dynamic world of theatre.

Our past year has been a very exciting one with the partnership between YES Theatre and STC and the building of the Refettorio. With record breaking attendance to cutting edge and impactful works of art, theatre in Sudbury is thriving!

We are proud to offer a wide range of performances that showcase both established and emerging talent, from delightful musicals, thought-provoking plays, to experimental and avant-garde performances that challenge the status quo. There will be performances for all at our brand new Refettorio and the recently updated and renovated Sudbury Theatre Centre.

MARETT MCCULLOCH

Chair, YES Theatre Board

Our team this year has programmed 6 main-stage shows that all celebrate a journey of overcoming and that all have a certain and specific relationship with our patrons. Whether you've heard Frankie Valli on the radio, studied Shakespeare or Mark Haddon in high-school, been inspired by Matilda's ferocious wit, or fell in love with Donny Osmond 20 years ago, this year you can have a special and familiar experience at the theatre. In fact, this entire season will foster relationship and connection.

A huge congratulations to the YES and STC staff who have lent their hearts and initiative to continuing to build and lift our city's theatrical identity to new heights and towards new initiatives. To quote Martin Luther King, Jr.: "The question is not whether we will be extremists, but what kind of extremists we will be... The world is in dire need of creative extremists." We in the theatre are one of the world's oldest institutions, and this means we must always look to be a pillar of our society in the way that most benefits our society.

I believe that this year we can continue to change the world by supporting our artistic community as we train a new generation of thespians at our drama camps, create theatre in three different theatrical spaces across our city and invite artists ranging from our local nurses to Broadway's most promising stars to our stages. I'm joyful that this year we can all celebrate spaces full of life, light, people, new and old friends and art. These are the things that can lend us a little necessary hope for a future that we can all be proud of. This is the 2023 YES/STC Season. Enjoy.

JOHN DOW

Co-Chair, STC Board

MESSAGES FROM THE MAYOR & MEMBER OF PARLIAMENT OF SUDBURY

PAUL LEFEBVRE
Mayor of Greater Sudbury

The theme of the 2023 season weaves itself throughout the partnership between YES Theatre and the Sudbury Theatre Centre.

It echoes confidently through our public spaces, reminding us of our interconnection as we resume in-person gatherings and events.

And it inspires us to pay attention to the vibrancy of life – the stories shared and dreams revealed through the performing arts.

There is something for everyone in the 2023 YES Theatre/STC season. The mix of musical theatre and classic drama – combined with a nod to Northern Ontario's own Shania Twain – highlights the diversity of our local talent and audience.

The opening of the YES Refettorio provides another moment of celebration. As Mayor of Greater Sudbury, I am extremely proud of our performing arts community, and how they have turned such an audacious goal into reality.

Life certainly is with people – and together, people make good things happen.

Congratulations to YES and STC. Wishing you every success this season.

VIVIANE LAPOINTE
Member of Parliament Sudbury

and revitalizing theatre here in Sudbury.

These passionate, dedicated, and professional actors and artists continue to build the backbone of our community, and the place we call home.

I want to sincerely congratulate the YES Theatre & Sudbury Theatre Centre team, Board of Directors, and supporters on an incredible upcoming season.

Thank you. Merci. Miigwech.

LETTER FROM THE ARTISTIC & MANAGING DIRECTOR

PHOTOGRAPHY BY JUAN ECHAVARRIA

In January of 2019 I was sitting in an airbnb in Sacramento, California while on tour. It was my 6th month living on the road and my time on tour was complicated. I was trying to enjoy the brilliant and fortunate position I found myself in; visiting all these amazing cities, being a part of great and impactful work, wonderful new friends, eating everything in sight at all times... while also running YES Theatre from away. Navigating that home/away balance was something I had done throughout the entire lifespan of the company, specifically while living in Toronto during the fall and winter, then returning home to Suds each summer to live out glorious musical days with the people I loved most. But being really far - like, really far away - different time zones and such - while planning planning planning - was both wonderful and exhausting.

What kept me joyful and inspired each day was the friendship and collaboration of the people I was working with and the shared vision of what we knew we were building.

One fateful night, while in Sacramento, I read a passage from a book called FREE FOR ALL, about the great Joseph Papp, legendary theatre producer who had a profound gift for making things happen. The passage at the time knocked me off my feet - the sentiment was at once recognizable to me, but also felt like a new and great wind in my heart - setting something within me into motion.

Everything you do, if you want to make any changes, is an enormous thing, impossible, but it becomes manageable once you start to deal with it. You have a sense of the end, but you can't operate from that point of view: you think of this one thing that has to be done right now. It's like cutting a hole into the side of a mountain. You have to start with just a few strokes, but at least you see something happening, a few shards are loosened.

But, I tell you, that starting is painful. I hate it.... You come up against a lot of resistance, both physical and psychological and you must go past the most extreme thing that you feel you can do. Everything says to you "Don't do it, don't do it," but you can't back away. You want to follow the line of least resistance, that's only human, but something doesn't let you do that, and you grind it out. You do it, you do it, you do it, and you get to see that almost everything is doable, one way or another. It's the most painful, the most undesirable choice to make, but if you don't do that, you won't have a chance, nothing will budge.
- Joe Papp, "Free For All"

I didn't know that the next chunk of my life would require these words to pass through my being almost daily.

The years from then to now were filled with significant and terrifying mountains to break through.

I am wildly grateful for the incredible support we have experienced in this last year; most notably for the birth of the Refettorio and for the STC & YES collaboration. I am proud of the sometimes loud and prominent and sometimes quiet and unnoticeable impact that our work is having in this community. Throughout these great changes in the cultural landscape of my life there has been a remarkable love, unlike any other, that has catapulted our organization to where we are at today.

Arriving here was not easy. It was accomplished through a singular, messy and blindingly passionate combination of people; of their spirits and their hopes and most importantly of the very human desire to be a part of something.

This is where the theatre can and must intersect with the essence of being alive. The theatre is fundamentally about connection. At its very core it is about congregation.

I think this is a very exciting time in our city - not just for the theatre but in all facets of our community. There is growth on the horizon, or at the very least there is an unstoppable desire for it. With that desire comes a tremendous responsibility to boldly stare at doubt and fear and red tape and red flags. To slowly chip away at it all, until what we're left with is the realized vision we have for the community we want to exist in.

For me, I try to realize that vision through the theatre. I strive to create a theatre that inextricably links us, not just by the fact that we're sitting in a room listening to the same story, but by the possibility it presents to blow open our hearts and minds. When we participate in the theatre, as audience, as artist, as volunteer, as friend, as family or as neighbour, we enter a corner of the universe filled with infinite moments where anything is possible. And it is that particular potential that makes it so vital. Here is a place where you can affirm that you are not alone in this life.

My eternal love and gratitude to our entire team and every kind person who experienced our work and will continue to support this bold new vision for a community driven professional theatre.

And it must be said as loudly as I can possibly say it - Scott Denniston is a remarkable human and none of this would have happened without him.

With love and joy and theatre stage bliss,

ALESSANDRO COSTANTINI
